

Ports & Excursions

Olden, Norway

By the mid-19th century, European travelers were cruising the waters of the Nordfjord and visiting the village of Olden. The Romantic Movement inspired this new taste for dramatic landscape - and Norway had plenty of dramatic landscape. Then as now, travelers were impressed, moved, and not frequently overwhelmed by the stark contrast between peaceful rural farmsteads and a towering wilderness of mountain peaks and glaciers.

For many years Olden was home to American landscape artist William H. Singer (1868-1943). Scion of a Pittsburgh steel family, Singer provided Olden with a road and a regional hospital.

Points of Interest

1 Jostedalbreen National Park

Jostedalbreen Glacier is famous for its vast ice sheets, which are the largest in mainland Europe. The National park's Visitors' Center features many fascinating exhibits, and 3D displays of the glaciers.

2 Nordfjord

At 66 miles, the Nordfjord is the sixth longest fjord in Norway, and encompasses the Jostedalbreen, mainland Europe's largest glacier. Famous for its skiing, it is also popular with fishing enthusiasts.

3 Briksdal Glacier

Briksdal Glacier, a hiker's favorite, is situated on the north side of the Jostedalbreen National Park, and flows over 3,937 feet, down the dramatic mountainside into the Briksdal Valley.

4 Loen

Loen is a small, picturesque village located in the inner part of the Nordfjord, about four miles north of Olden. It is also home to some of the oldest farms in Norway, pre-dating Christianity.

5 Kjenndalen Glacier

The Kjenndalen Glacier is one of the many glaciers in Jostedalbreen National Park, but is unique in that it is an intense blue-green color. A 30-minute hike will take you to a beautiful view of the glacier.

6 Lake Lovatn

Lake Lovatn boasts miles of turquoise waters, which have been colored by clays washed down from the Kjenndalen Glacier. Twice in the last century, avalanches triggered tsunami-like waves on the lake.

7 Olden Lake

Enjoy the blue-green water, mountain waterfalls and gaze in awe at the Jostedalbreen Glacier.
